From the Boſton-Gazettes.

GATHER up the fragments, let nothing be loſt, is a ſentence that deſerves to be written in capitals of Gold, and might ſhine among the ornaments in the dwellings of all Mankind, from the Throne to the Footſtool. Oeconomy is a national as well as private Virtue, and perhaps as univerſally beneficial as any one Virtue whatſoever. "A penny ſav'd, is two pence clear", is a ſaying, tho' common, yet of great importance both to individuals and the public, eſpecially to ſuch communities where caſh is ſcarce, and more eſpecially where their imports of the neceſſaries of life exceed the exports of all that can be ſpared from the neceſſities of the people. I have heard it ſaid of the city of London, that they ſmelt great riches from ſuch things as are made no account of in many other parts of the world; there is not an excrement or excreſcence of any kind, but what is by ſome means or other turn'd (by induſtry and labour) into Gold. Even horns, hoofs and bones, ſwine's briſtles and an hundred more &c's contribute to their opulence. Should AMERICA follow the laudable example, how ſoon would the balance of trade be turn'd in our favour, how many new manufactories would grow out of ſuch oeconomy?

I ſhall only mention one, (but I hope ſome able pen will ſet it in an engaging light, and propoſe other and better plans for the Public) The PAPER MANUFACTORY, were it encouraged among us, and mills multiply'd, would be a vaſt ſaving in our importations. The queſtion that will naturally ariſe is, How ſhall we ſtock them? The anſwer is, by good oeconomy—Every family in this vaſt province might contribute ſomething towards it: But what I have chiefly in view is, the vaſt quantity of Tow that falls from the brake in the manufactory of flax. This may be had at almoſt every farmer's room doors throughout this province, only for the bare charge of coll'ding and tranſportation. At preſent it ſerves only to divert children in making bon fires. What is then waſted might employ conſtantly a good mill, and fully ſupply us with all our printing paper, vaſt quantities of which are wanted, eſpecially for loaf ſugar, and would, when exported, fetch the ſame price.—The conſtruction of this material may be an objection, but it may be ſaid in anſwer, that threſhing the tow with a flail, will cleanſe it from ſhives or heaves and filth.

THE uſe of Hyperick or Labradore Tea, is every day coming into more general vogue among people of all ranks. The virtues of the plant or ſhrub from which this deelicate Tea is gathered, were firſt diſcovered by the Aborigines, and from them the Canadians learned them. It ſoon became into ſuch requeſt that quantities were ſent to France, where I have heard ſay, it was ſoon in ſuch demand, as alarmed the French Eaſt India company, and procured an ordinance prohibiting the importation of any more on the pain of death. So little do ſome politicians regard the health or even the life of man, when either of them appear to be incompatible with their particular intereſts, views and projects. Before the ceſſion of Canada to Great-Britain, we knew little or nothing of this moſt excellent herb: but ſince that we have been taught to find it growing on every hill and dale, between the latitude 40 and 60. It is to be found all over New England in great plenty, and that of the beſt quality, particularly on the banks of Pennaſſaſt, Kennebeck, Nibbowaſcot and Merrimac. Immenſe quantities may be found on the mountains near the great lakes.

Nothing ſhort of the higheſt degree of infatuation and madneſs could ever have prevailed with us to introduce exoticks. The voice of reaſon cries louder than ever for their perpetual baniſhment; and the further uſe of them muſt be accounted for but by the force of invincible prejudice. This indeed ſometimes leads to a preference of rank poiſon, if faſhioned and dear bought, to the moſt ſalubrious draught at hand, with little pains or coſt, tho' of ineſtimable value.

IN this time of great diſtreſs and grievous complaining among tradeſmen, about dullneſs of trade, and uncommon ſcarcity of money, it would be extremely beneficent if the wealthy and money'd men of all denominations, would call for their tradeſmen's bills, and pay thoſe ſums which to them are trifling and inconſiderable, but to the poor induſtrious tradeſman, the needy mechanic, and all men of narrow circumſtances, are of great conſequence; eſpecially conſidering, that in the courſe of trade and buſineſs, a little remains here, a little there, and many of theſe littles collected together, would amount to ſuch a ſum as would ſet the needy man in a free and eaſy ſituation, enable him to pay his way, and ſo the money would circulate from hand to hand until it ſoon reverted to the ſame benevolent hands that had kindly put it in motion. Theſe little payments coming ſpontaneouſly from the great, would do the poor man infinite ſervice; yet ſuch may be his condition, that he dare not aſk for one of theſe ſums through fear of offending his rich employer, and through him many others connected with him by friendſhip and intereſt, conſequently ruining his trade. Thus are many worthy men circumſtanced at this day, on every ſide threatened with impending ruin; preſſed hard by their creditors on the one ſide, afraid to demand their own on the other, and I fear, very frequently repulſed by ſome of theſe wealthy cuſtomers, where they are hardy enough to ſolicit payments, with threats of ſeeing their hon reſentments for preſuming to dun them. Hard alternative! either to diſoblige his cuſtomers or to go to jail for them! Perhaps both; endeavouring to call in his money to pay his juſt debts, he fails in his enterprize, incurs the diſpleaſure of his cuſtomers, and at laſt goes to jail to oblige them. Conſider this, ye great! Appropriate ſome ſmall ſhare of your money to pay your tradeſmen's bills, you will thereby reſtore their deſponding hearts, revive their drooping ſpirits, give them freſh life and vigour in their buſineſs (as occaſions, and do a greater act of charity (till may be term'd) than if you were to diſtribute large ſums to wards some pompous charitable institution. I have no doubt but many noble, generous spirits will readily take this public hint in good part, and shew their approbation by a ready compliance, & promptly given answer to call for their bills and pay them with cheerful mien. PHŒBUS.

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 22.

Mr. Durand, charged with the affairs of France in the absence of the ambassador, yesterday received dispatches of importance from his court, and this day had a long conference with his majesty's secretary of state.

SEPTEMBER 23.

A grand Gresham committee was held at Mercer's Hall yesterday, when it was resolved to pull down the west end of the Royal Exchange, and to rebuild it in a grand manner, after a plan laid before them by Mr. Robinson.

SEPTEMBER 30.

Apples sold last year at half a crown a bushel in Covent-Garden market, are now sold for ten shillings.

The French are actually repairing the harbour of Dunkirk, under pretence of improving their inland navigation. People there talk of an approaching war.

By a letter from a member of the imperial academy at Petersbourg, the Empress of Russia has already given orders for providing instruments for observing the next transit of Venus over the sun, (June 3, 1769) with all possible accuracy at different places in her dominions; an example that cannot fail of exciting a proper emulation in all the princes of Europe.

The Portuguese have offered 600 000 crowns by way of ransom for their slaves in Morocco, and 25,000 crowns a year to purchase peace, and as an acknowledgement so long as it shall last; and nearly the same offer is made to the Dey of Algiers. The Venetians, on the contrary, gave orders to their admiral Emo, that in case the Dey should not comply with his demands of peace, he should declare war, keep cruizing with the eight ships under his command in those seas of Barbary, and sink and burn all Algerine vessels that he should meet with.

An oak tree was lately sold near Ludlow in Shropshire, the produce of which were 13 tons of timber, 43 cords of wood, 200 park pales, and five cords of brackes. A bough broke off before the tree was cut down, which weighed seven tons and one half, and three men were employed a month in stocking it. The whole tree was valued at 140l.

American Intelligence.

WILLIAMSBURG, (Virginia) October 8.

WE hear from Hillsborough in North-Carolina, that on the 15th of Sept last, the regiment of militia of Orange county were reviewed at that place, by his excellency governor Tryon, when there appeared under arms 1023 men, exclusive of a troop of light horse. His excellency was pleased, after the battalion and troops had passed in review, and gone through their firings, accompanied with several discharges of some pieces of his majesty's artillery, to express great satisfaction at the martial appearance, and regular behaviour of the men and officers of the corps. In the evening a bonfire was erected, at which his majesty's health, prosperity to the governor and province, and other loyal and public spirited toasts, were drank, at each of which there was a discharge of the artillery, and the whole concluded with every demonstration of alacrity and joy.

"There is scarce any history, either ancient or modern, which affords an account of such a rapid and sudden increase of inhabitants in a back frontier country, as that of North Carolina. To justify the truth of this observation, we need only to inform our readers, that twenty years ago there were not twenty taxable persons within the limits of the above-mentioned county of Orange; in which there now are four thousand taxables. The increase of inhabitants, and flourishing state of the other adjoining back counties, are no less surprizing and astonishing.

BOSTON, November 2.

From Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, we learn, That His Excellency the Governor of that Province, in part upon establishing the Honour of the Militia, reviewed the first Regiment of Foot on the 15th of October, attended by His Majesty's Council, and escorted by the Troop of Life Guards: The next Day reviewed the Regiment at Dover: And on Monday following went to Hampton, and reviewed Colonel Weare's: Next Morning went to Exeter, and reviewed Colonel Gilman's: The whole Province seem pleased with this General Review, which His Excellency will continue till compleated.—Addresses were presented by the Officers of each Regiment, and very great Entertainments were made for His Excellency and those that attended him.

BOSTON, November 16.

"The public may be assured that the inhabitants of this town in general, are going into more frugal measures than have been come into at their late meetings particularly, by laying aside tea, and not purchasing woollens of any kind for 12 or eighteen months, after the first of January next.

We have the pleasure to learn, that the great Ones here, who have been expecting their salaries would be encreased by thousands out of the new duties, now begin to think that they will all be set aside by the new measures now pursuing in this and the other provinces.

We can confidently assure the whole world, that the people of this province are as well disposed to assist the civil magistrate in the lawful exercise of authority, without the aid of military troops, as any of his majesty's subjects in England; and that this county, and the town of Boston in particular, have always shewn as great a readiness to support government, as any county in this province, notwithstanding the late Insults at all times of a certain turbulent disposition, which is NO JUDGE to the contrary.

From London we have the following paragraph: "The wife of Mr. Noah Cooke, of this town, has had four children within the space one year and 16 days. What makes it the more remarkable is, that Mr. Cooke was a married man four years before his present wife was born, and his last child makes him father of eight."

PROVIDENCE, November 21.

Upon the recommendation of the town council, a full quire, in consequence of a letter from the selectmen of Boston to that board, the town clerk's warrant is issued for calling a town meeting on Wednesday next, at one o'clock in the afternoon, for entering into some effectual measures for promoting industry, economy and manufactures. The town, it is thought, will generally attend, and exert themselves for bringing about the grand purposes of their meeting, as the consequences of the vast imports of superfluities, and such goods as may be fabricated here, with the effects of certain new regulations, begin to be sensibly felt.

One day this week a number of ladies, upon an afternoon's visit, at a friend's house, appeared dressed principally in the manufactures of this colony, and without ribbons. They were genteelly treated by the lady of the house (who was in the same habit) with suitable refreshments, although tea was excluded. It is hoped this example of oeconomy will be followed.

BOSTON, November 23.

At a town-meeting holden in this town the 20th instant, wherein the hon. James Otis, Esq; presided as moderator, the inhabitants took into consideration the ill conduct of some evil-minded persons, tending to excite tumults and disorders, and unanimously voted their abhorrence of any such measures, and that they would use their utmost endeavours to preserve peace and good order.——On this occasion the moderator made a speech to the following purport——"That many people seemed to have "blended two things together in their mind which "were totally distinct.——That is the duties laid "upon many articles imported, and the office of "the commissioners of the customs, as though the "commissioners had occasioned those duties, and "that we must get rid of the latter in order to avoid "the former.—That it was absurd to suppose that "the commissioners had the least hand or influence "in laying or procuring those duties.—That we had "from the first, and for a long course of time acknowledged the authority of the custom house officers appointed by the crown and sent among us, "—That we had often desired the establishment of "a board of commissioners in the plantations, and "complained, that for want of it we were deprived "of many advantages which our fellow subjects in "Great-Britain enjoyed; who, if oppressed by any "undue severities of the subordinate officers, might "have immediate redress by application to that "board, which we could not by reason of our distance.—That we ought therefore to consider the "establishment of the board here as a favour and of "great advantage, and treat the commissioners with "all due respect.—That if the duties were thought "burthensome, and we had just reason to complain "of them, we ought to behave like men and use "the proper and legal measures to obtain redress.—"That the means were in our power; access to the "throne was always open; that there was no "doubt, but our humble and dutiful petitions and "remonstrances would sooner or later be heard and "meet with success, if supported by justice and reason.—But let our burthens be ever so heavy, or "our grievances ever so great, no possible circumstances, though ever so oppressive, could be supposed sufficient to justify private tumults and disorders, either to our consciences before God, or legally before men.—That our forefathers in the beginning of the reign of Charles I. for 15 years together, were continually offering up prayers to their God, and petitions to their king, for the redress of grievances, before they would betake themselves to any forcible measures.—That to insult and tear each other to pieces was to act like madmen, and would have no tendency to obtain redress of any of our grievances, if we had any to complain of.—That it was observable that during the course of the revolution which placed king William on the throne, there were no tumults or disorder, and when the whole city of London was in motion, only a single silver spoon was stolen, "and that they shewed such resentment to this, as "immediately to hang up the person who was found "guilty of the theft."—Upon the whole he concluded by recommending a quiet and proper behaviour, and that the inhabitants of the town would shew their dislike and abhorrence of all tumults and disorders, and do all in their power to assist the civil magistrates in preserving peace and good order.—

This speech was much to his honour, and greatly applauded, and is thought would have a very good effect.—The conduct of the gentlemen select men on this occasion was also greatly applauded.

While the town were warmly engaged in this laudable attempt to promote frugality and oeconomy, they were not inattentive to the present distressed situation of their trade, occasioned by the additional duties and burden laid upon it: And as these duties appeared to be prejudicial to the natural as well as constitutional charter rights of the people of this province, they thought it proper to give their representatives their explicit sentiments and instructions upon a matter of such great moment; and accordingly appointed a committee to report at the adjournment the 22d of next month.—When measures are proposed which will bear to be scrutinized, upon the principles of reason and the constitution, a wise and prudent community will never fail to adopt them with unanimity: and while such measures are pursued with vigour, every one will easily discern that all violent efforts must be unnecessary, and consequently in the highest degree culpable: Upon this consideration the moderator, in an animated address, exhorted his fellow-citizens, to be stedfast in the step they had resolved upon; and the town unanimously agreed to exert themselves on all occasions, to support peace and good order.——It would however be injustice to the inhabitants not to observe, that the last resolution was come into, to shew an indignation at a dirty trick of some one person, doubtless an enemy to our civil rights, who under cover of the preceding night, had pasted up a paper on the venerable Elm, said to contain matter adapted (tho' happily it failed of the intended effect) to irritate the passion, at a time when ALL depends upon our being cool, deliberate and firm.

Among the many improbable paragraphs in a paper of last Monday, to delude the public, we cannot help taking notice of a very glaring one, viz. "Many people in the country have wondered what "should occasion the present scarcity of money, "their wonder must cease by being told, that lately "only two vessels carried off about 160,000 l. of "our silver and gold, paid for duties and taxes on "sugar, melasses and rum, cocoa, &c. consumed in "the province, and that it is computed by some, "that near a million of our money in Old Tenor, "has already gone from us in this way."—We can assure the public from undoubted authority that the above is a false representation of the matter, as there was not so much as six thousand pounds sent from this province for the last year past—and can assure the public, that all the duties collected in this province since the 28th of September, 1764, to this place, has not amounted to a thousand.

Last Tuesday the new commissioners held a board of customs at Mr. Dellile's great room in Hanover-street.
